Date of event: Christmas season 2003

Algonquin College extends an invitation to the Ottawa area media to use the college's horticulture display area over the Christmas season for broadcast events such live morning or noon hour shows. The college's horticulture students have created Las Flores de Nochebuena, a seasonal floral display with a South American twist. Las Flores de Nochebuena, which translates Flowers of the Holy Night, is the original name for the poinsettia, a plant native to Mexico and South America.

The show is open to the public until Jan. 3, weekdays from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m. and weekends from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m.
