

First part of restoration project complete at Textile Museum

Simon Whitehouse
Gazette reporter

The first phase of an ongoing restoration project at the Mississippi Valley Textile Museum came to an end last week.

The Algonquin College Perth Campus Heritage Masonry

Program set about restoring the building as part of a three-year project. The museum has been looking forward to having the students of the program address some of the wear that has impacted the building over the years.

-- See MVTM
page 2

Algonquin College Heritage Masonry program Craig Beattie is among those who worked for the last two weeks on the program's restoration project of the Mississippi Valley Textile Museum.

SIMON WHITEHOUSE-ALMONTE GAZETTE