Bachelor of Digital Marketing Communication (Honours) (Co-op) Pathway for Business Administration - Marketing and Business

Honours Degree

Program Code: 6450A03FWO

4 Years

Ottawa Campus

Our Program

The four-year Bachelor of Digital Marketing Communication (Honours) degree provides students with a foundation in digital storytelling and digital technology, allowing them to effectively craft a message for a target audience and to create a communications plan to disseminate this message.

Eligible graduates of the Business Administration - Marketing Ontario College Advanced Diploma program or Business - Marketing Ontario College Diploma program can apply to this pathway program and receive credit for up to 12 courses in the degree, reducing the time to degree completion to 3 years.

Students gain theoretical and practical knowledge regarding media channel selection, digital storytelling, marketing communications research, digital analytics and global communications. The program utilizes case studies and fieldwork to provide opportunities for students to practice the newly-acquired skills in a real-world context. Additionally, students conduct marketing research, utilize digital analytics and marketing research to make decisions and craft communications plans for clients within the classroom setting.

Students also gain real-world experience through a paid co-operative education (co-op) work term (s) (see Additional Information for more details). Please note that places in the co-op work term(s) are subject to availability and academic eligibility. Please note admission to a co-op program does not guarantee a co-op placement.

Graduates may seek employment in media and communications departments within government, non-profit organizations, associations, advertising and digital agencies as well as private corporations. They may work in areas such as journalism, advertising, public relations, marketing communications, professional writing and social media.

SUCCESS FACTORS

This program is well suited for students who:

The College shall ensure that all students admitted to the above-named program during the period of consent have the opportunity to complete the program within a reasonable timeframe.

CO-OP INFORMATION:

Co-operative education (Co-op) allows students to integrate their classroom learning with a real-world experience through paid work terms. Two academic terms prior to the cooperative education work term, students are required to actively participate in and successfully complete the self-directed co-op course, readiness activities and workshops.

Students must actively conduct a guided, self-directed job search and are responsible for securing approved program-related paid co-op employment. Students compete for co-op positions alongside students from Algonquin College and other Canadian and international colleges and universities. Algonquin College's Co-op Department provides assistance in developing co-op job opportunities and guides the overall process, but does not guarantee that a student will obtain employment in a co-op work term. Co-op students may be required to relocate to take part in the co-op employment opportunities available in their industry and must cover all associated expenses; e.g., travel, work permits, visa applications, accommodation and all other incurred expenses.

Co-op work terms are typically 14 weeks in duration and are completed during a term when students are not taking courses. For more information on your program's co-op level(s), visit the courses tab on your program's webpage.

International students enrolled in a co-op program are required by Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship Canada (IRCC) to have a valid Co-op/Internship Work Permit prior to commencing their work term. Without this document International students are not legally eligible to engage in work in Canada that is part of an academic program. The Co-op/Internship Work Permit does not authorize international students to work outside the requirements of their academic program.

For more information on co-op programs, the co-op work/study schedule, as well as general and program-specific co-op eligibility criteria, please visit www.algonquincollege.com/coop.

Successful completion of all courses, including mandatory cooperative education (Co-op) Work Terms, is a requirement for graduation.

Course Descriptions

ADV4201 External Communications

Communications professionals are capable of crafting compelling external messages. This capacity involves addressing a variety of audiences, distinguishing communications purposes and evaluating media channels. Examining public relations and advertising issues provides a theoretical framework of external communications. Discourse analysis is conducted to compare and contrast messages that address consumers, donors and media respectively. To develop a hands-on approach, students craft oral and written messages for both stable and crisis situations.

Prerequisite(s): none
Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4202 Introduction to Social Media

Social media platforms and strategies play a key role in how companies influence audiences, expand their brand influence, and generate new leads. Students manage, execute and evaluate social media campaigns by targeting audiences, crafting compelling messages and content, and reviewing analytics. Through case studies, industry resources and practical application, students evaluate the current practices, strategic benefits and limitations of social media campaigns and suggest more effective methods.

Prerequisite(s): none
Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4301 Digital Analytics I

Digital communications technologies are an extremely important element of the marketing communications mix and the ability to track these channels and make campaign-level decisions from these results is critical. The focus is on setting tracking objectives and measurement strategies and matching those with the appropriate tools. Students learn best practices in data collection methodologies, as well as the metrics that best measure web, mobile, social and marketing channels, these metrics' limitations and how to utilize each one to gain insights into the customer experience.

Prerequisite(s): none
Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4302 Digital Storytelling

Digital storytelling is utilized as a strategy for brand building and consumer engagement. By distinguishing digital storytelling from traditional marketing methods, students learn the importance of transforming consumers into brand advocates. Crafting digital narratives requires communications professionals to establish brand identity, deepen emotional engagement with target consumers, prioritize media platforms and measure campaign outcomes. To develop familiarity with digital storytelling, students design branding campaigns and explore the option of turning clients into brand ambassadors.

Prerequisite(s): ADV4201
Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4303 Audience and Media Insight

Media producers, advertisers and market consultants make recommendations and craft messages by distinguishing the audience as a target, a commodity and a participant. Conducting research and analysis helps to determine the match between media products and the audience's demographic characteristics. Students further learn to conduct research by considering the audience as a commodity for a potentially matching market. This active role requires communication practitioners to draw insights from the audience regarding their experiences, lifestyles and views on media products

Prerequisite(s): none
Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4400 Digital Media Buying

As communication and advertising practitioners create a communications plan, it is important to understand how to efficiently and effectively buy digital media. Students explore how to find and buy the right media at the right cost for the company's message. Buying online advertising, social media ads, lead generation, and other digital media channels are explored as students devise a digital media plan and budget.

Prerequisite(s): none
Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4401 Digital Analytics II

Tracking the effectiveness of digital communications technologies and making inferences and recommendations from this information is critical. The focus is on the measurement tools available to evaluate the effectiveness of digital messages disseminated through paid channels such as banner advertising and social media ads. Students run tracking simulations and practice setting objectives and strategies, using various tracking tools, and relaying their results in a clear, concise and critical manner to various stakeholders.

Prerequisite(s): ADV4301
Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4502 Social Media Execution and Analytics

In an increasingly digital world, companies must find and communicate with consumers online. Students develop social media calendars, craft compelling messages aimed at a brand's target audience, discuss how to monitor different social media channels and engage in real time dialogues with customers. Furthermore, students use reach, engagement and sentiment monitoring and analytics strategies to determine social media effectiveness.

Prerequisite(s): ADV4202
Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4503 Digital Technologies

Digital media is an important element of a communications plan as consumers rely more and more upon online information to make decisions. Students explore the various existing and emerging media options and how to craft a compelling narrative utilizing these tools. Emphasis is placed on adapting as new technologies emerge. Students craft a media plan appropriate for the brand's strategic objectives.

Prerequisite(s): none
Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4505 Consumer Behaviour

Psychological factors such as motivation, self-concept and perception have a profound influence on the buying process. Understanding how consumers make decisions and perceive the world allows communications and media practitioners to craft and distribute messages that speak to the consumer more effectively. Topics include the buying process, decision models and current trends in consumer behaviour and expectations such as mindfulness, expectation of personalization and perceptions of innovations and technology.

Prerequisite(s): MKT4101
Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4600 Multicultural Communications

In an increasingly multicultural environment, communications practitioners need to adapt communications campaigns to distinct domestic audiences. Students research social norms and customs and apply their findings to create multicultural campaigns that adapt the media mix, message and creative execution. The emphasis is on adapting a broad national campaign to specific multicultural audiences.

Prerequisite(s): ADV4201 and MKT4203
Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4601 Internal Communications

Internal communications are critical to employee engagement and organizational success. Communication professionals develop team skills, foster trust and master interpersonal communications. To craft internal messages in different formats and for different purposes, students explore a variety of theoretical frameworks and communications tools. Students also learn to build teamwork and turn crises into opportunities through effective internal communications.

Prerequisite(s): none
Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4603 Search Media Strategies and Tactics

As consumers research a product purchase, they often utilize a search engine to begin and refine their search for information. Being one of the first brands or websites on the list when consumers search related keywords is one of the ways that a firm can create an image of success and encourage consideration. Students explore search engine optimization and marketing strategies in order to ensure that prospective customers see the brand's website and name. Students implement best practices in website optimization and develop keyword lists, write search engine ad copy and assess analytics results.

Prerequisite(s): ADV4400
Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4701 Mobile Strategies and Tactics

With much of the adult population owning a cell phone, mobile marketing is becoming an increasingly important part of the marketing communications mix. Students explore various mobile media marketing options as they create and execute a mobile communications strategy that fits a brand's overall advertising and communications strategy and image. Students also evaluate the effectiveness and limitations of these communications strategies.

Prerequisite(s): none
Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4703 Global Communications

Combining the major skills of this program in an applied setting allows students to decipher the big picture of international communications. The emphasis is on case studies in a global environment. Students create integrated promotional campaigns that utilize mobile, search, traditional, digital and social media aimed at audiences in various regions of the world, as well as plans to measure the effectiveness of their campaigns. Students complete the first stage of a year-long capstone project demonstrating expertise in recommending dissemination strategies and developing storytelling pieces for a global brand within the paid and owned digital media space.

Prerequisite(s): ADV4302
Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4801 Global Brand and Reputation Management

The emergence of online word-of-mouth through discussion boards, social media, and bloggers has made brand reputation more vulnerable and complex. Students manage brand images through internal and external communications. Furthermore, students monitor and safeguard the brand reputation across the ever-shifting digital landscape by crafting messages aimed at internal and external stakeholders across multiple regions, thus practicing brand management in a simulated crisis situation. Students complete the second stage of their year-long capstone project by monitoring a global brand's footprint and recommending a reputation management strategy to for its earned and shared digital media space.

Prerequisite(s): ADV4600 and ADV4703
Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4802 Digital Marketing Research and Data Analytics

In the digital world, it is crucial that communications and marketing practitioners adapt the marketing research process to the online context. Students apply the various tools and methodologies of digital marketing research, including online panels and digital analytics, to an online marketing research project. This includes setting strategic objectives, data collection, data analysis and making strategic recommendations. Students complete a capstone project in tandem with the Business and Campaign Analytics class. In this cross-class project, students will gather initial research through both secondary and primary digital collection methods; develop a digital strategy; implement, track, and optimize the digital strategy; develop post campaign evaluation reports; and roll up the findings into marketing and business-level return on investment objectives.

Prerequisite(s): MKT4602
Corerequisite(s):BUS4800

ADV4803 Persuasive Campaigns

Crafting compelling campaigns is the goal of most communications and advertising professionals. Students plan and manage a persuasive campaign utilizing all the digital media presented throughout the program. Working in teams, students conduct market research and create a strategic communications campaign of strategic importance to an organization.

Prerequisite(s): ADV4101 and ADV4302
Corerequisite(s):none

BIO2200 Botany

Biologists with an interest in plant life may choose to specialize in botany. Beginning with the organic features of life, focusing on plants, students investigate the diversity of plant life and the basis for distinction amongst various species. With a deeper knowledge of plant structures and variability, students consider the impact of plants in the modern world, including human interactions such as food production, building materials and medicine.

Prerequisite(s): none
Corerequisite(s):none

BUS4800 Business and Campaign Analytics

Combining the major skills of this program in an applied setting allows students to comprehend the big picture of research-based decision-making in a business context. The emphasis is on case studies in a global environment. By applying various business analytics, students evaluate integrated promotional campaigns that utilize mobile, search, traditional, digital and social media in order to make recommendations about how to adjust and optimize the campaign in the future. Students complete a capstone project in tandem with the Digital Marketing Research class. In this cross-class project, students will gather initial research through both secondary and primary digital collection methods; develop a digital strategy; implement, track, and optimize the digital strategy; develop post campaign evaluation reports; and roll up the findings into marketing and business-level return on investment objectives.

DSN4401 Introduction to Creative Design

Visual communication is an essential component of all digital media. A basic knowledge of the skills, structures and contexts such as the design process, image making, ethics, critical and strategic thinking, available through creative design allows students to contribute to the design process within the larger context of industry, culture and society. Through a combination of research and studio based work, students will be introduced to the design process and its applications.

Prerequisite(s): none
Corerequisite(s):none

DSN4702 Interactive Website Design

In a digital world, the flow, function and content of a company's website are equally important in communicating to audiences and influencing behaviour. Students learn the principles of user-centered design to create interactive content for the web. Students employ design thinking and rapid prototyping methods while experimenting with content, grid layouts and responsive design techniques to build mobile-first websites.

Prerequisite(s): none
Corerequisite(s):none

ECO2000 Environmental Economics

Issues pertaining to the environment have a major financial impact on society and government. Environmental economics examines the way human decisions affect the quality of the environment, how human values and institutions shape our demands for improvements in the quality and about designing effective public policies to bring about these improvements. Students examine problems and solutions relating to environmental policy analysis in the Canadian context.

Prerequisite(s): none
Corerequisite(s):none

ENL2025 Interpersonal Communication

Effectively communicating with others, both professionally and personally, is an art that requires conscious development. Students address the techniques related to interpersonal communication challenges in the diverse workplace. Focus is on communication barriers, verbal and non-verbal communication, listening, team work, and relational dynamics. Through role play, analysis, and case studies, students engage in simulated and authentic interpersonal communication situations.

Prerequisite(s): ENL1100
Corerequisite(s):none

ENL4016 World Literature

Exposure to broad sources of literature promotes an open-minded perspective on today's global society and encourages an appreciation of diversity and human differences. In World Literature, students explore key literary works from around the world and examine the socio-historical and cultural contexts in which authors wrote and set these texts. Students learn to identify common themes and apply literary and cultural theory to these works towards expanding critical thinking skills and developing an analytical vocabulary. Through seminar presentations, group discussions, debates, journaling, and creative writing, students grapple with literary representations of social, political, and cultural issues from around the world, gaining an appreciation of what it means to be responsible global citizens and possess the ability to listen to, question, and value diverse perspectives.

FLS3101 French as a Second Language - Beginner 1

The French language is an asset when communicating in the workplace. Students with no prior knowledge of French acquire basic forms and structures to interact and communicate in a simple way with French speakers. Class instruction and practice, repeated feedback, and exposure to a variety of language samples support students to gain basic oral expression and comprehension using simple phrases that develop vocabulary, pronunciation, and comprehension. Students begin to appreciate cultural and linguistic differences when French is used in the workplace.

Prerequisite(s): none
Corerequisite(s):none

FLS3102 French as a Second Language - Beginner 2

The workplace benefits from having professionals with knowledge of the French language. Students with basic knowledge of French gain more control over forms and structures to interact and communicate in a simple way with French speakers. Class instruction and practice, repeated feedback, and exposure to a variety of language samples provide students with opportunities to enhance their basic oral expression and comprehension using simple phrases that further develop vocabulary, pronunciation, and comprehension. Students deepen their knowledge of cultural and linguistic differences of French in the workplace.

GEO2300 Principles of Urban Planning

Increasingly cities and communities are feeling the pressure of expansion, and people from all walks of life feel disconnected from the processes, procedures, and decisions that are affecting everyday life. Students consider urban transformation with a focus on practicing sustainability by exploring innovations in land use, transportation, resource planning and economic development, resulting in employment opportunities, as well as healthy and vibrant cities. Students use local and regional activities as a starting point for developing a knowledge base for future social and community involvement. Research projects and assignments encourage students to identify the gaps between theoretical approaches to urban planning and the practical applications as evidenced in their local surroundings.

Prerequisite(s): none
Corerequisite(s):none

GEP1001 Cooperative Education and Job Readiness

Students are guided through a series of activities that prepare them to conduct a professional job search and succeed in the workplace. Through a detailed orientation students learn the cooperative education program policies and procedures related to searching and securing a work term opportunity. Students identify their strengths and transferable skills and participate in workshop-style sessions that focus on cover letter and resume development, interview techniques and job search strategies. Students learn how to navigate a web-based resource centre, which is used to post employment and cooperative education job opportunities. Students reflect on workplace success, ethics and responsibilities.

LAW2014 Law

The reach of the rule of law extends into our lives on a daily basis. As much as it is present in our lives, very few people are aware of the processes, procedures and theories that guide and underpin the development and maintenance of a functional legal system. With attention to key historical figures and events, students explore the scope, jurisdiction, and key concepts of the sub-disciplines within the field of law. Through an introduction to legal arguments and methodologies, students distinguish between various legal systems and wrestle with the difference between law and justice.

MKT4203 Trendspotting in a Global Environment

International business communications are characterized by the interpenetration of major global trends and local cultural conditions. This interpenetration highlights the importance of cultural and regional differences and rules out a standardized approach to global branding. To think globally and to act locally, students research major global trends in a region of interest, conduct a literature review and search engine optimization (SEO), analyze local consumption cultures and make strategic branding recommendations.

Prerequisite(s): none
Corerequisite(s):none

MKT4602 Market Research Foundations

Data regarding the audience, the product and the brand is required in order to make sound marketing decisions. Students utilize exploratory, descriptive and causal research methods in order to make business decisions. Research skills such as sampling, statistical analysis and questionnaire design are reviewed and practiced. Students conduct a marketing research study, analyze the results and make strategic marketing recommendations.

Prerequisite(s): PHI2000
Corerequisite(s):none

MKT4700 Niche Marketing

Respected strategists maintain that a company can create an extremely targeted campaign for a small, niche subset of the population as a way to become a market leader. Utilizing this strategy allows communicators to develop a particularly close, reciprocal and loyal relationship with their customers. Students identify and select a niche market and create a marketing mix targeted towards this niche market. As a final project, students identify a niche market for a real-world client and craft a marketing mix strategy aimed towards this market.

Prerequisite(s): MKT4101

PHI2000 Introduction to Research

Academic research requires students to possess a fundamental knowledge of accepted methodologies and practices. An overview of the research process and tools prepares students to engage in scholarly work. Emphasis is on evaluation, selection and documentation of primary and secondary sources, as well as the development of a research project.

Prerequisite(s): ENL1100 and PHI1000
Corerequisite(s):none

PHI2002 Ethical Decision Making

To avoid potential prosecution, companies and their employees are well-advised to engage in ethical decision-making practices in all business situations. Students examine ethical concepts and principles, compare a variety of ethical decision-making models and utilize these principles and models to make ethically sound decisions in a variety of contexts. Students also design a code of ethics, practice making ethically- based decisions and develop the analytical skills required to recognize, evaluate and resolve ethical dilemmas in the workplace.

Prerequisite(s): PHI1000

PHI4002 The Philosophy of Drugs

Drugs are everywhere: professionals prescribe them to us to make us "better"; we take them recreationally; we give them to our children, pets and other loved ones; we buy them on the streets and in grocery stores. What are "drugs"? Why are some drugs legal and others not? How do drugs get to market? What ethical issues are relevant in a global drug industry? Are current intellectual property regimes appropriate if the goal of drug research is to promote benefits to society? Students critically examine these, and other, questions through the lens of historical and contemporary ethical, philosophical and legal theories and arguments. Students engage in various peer-oriented learning activities throughout the course.

PHI4004 Technology, Society and the Environment

Environmental issues have come to occupy a central place in the marketplace, politics, policy, and society at large. Owing largely to the many environmental consequences that have accompanied industrialization, we humans have been forced to rethink the complex relationship between technology, society and the environment. Students investigate philosophical concepts and theories surrounding technology, society and the environment including: the "naturalness" of technology, sustainability and animal rights. Students critically examine course material by focusing on questions such as: What is nature, and what role do/should humans occupy in it? What do we owe non-human organisms? What do we owe future generations? Students engage in various peer-oriented learning activities throughout the course.

PHY4000 Black Holes, Big Bangs and the Cosmos

The dynamic and exciting field of Cosmology outlines our current understanding of the Universe from its start, at the so-called Big Bang, through the ensuing 13 plus billion years to the present and beyond. Students learn how to discuss our present understanding of the three phases of the Universe as well as its five part make up, with matter making up only 4% of the whole. Students explain our knowledge of the various phases of evolution of the Cosmos and also the latest theories and experiments that are trying to address our uncertainties. Throughout the course, students evaluate and debate many of today's ideas and concepts revolving around cosmology.

PSY2100 Introductory Psychology

With its applications to behaviour and personality, psychology extends its reach into many aspects of our personal lives. The broad applications of this social science in both an applied and theoretical context are premised on a number of fundamental principles. Students explore historical breakthroughs that define the current boundaries of the discipline and interact with a number of the foundational concepts that resonate throughout daily life and popular culture. Students develop an introductory knowledge in the various schools of thought within the discipline.

Prerequisite(s): none
Corerequisite(s):none

SCI2000 Environmental Science

Environmental science is an interdisciplinary study of how the earth works, human interaction with the earth and how to address the existing environmental problems. Students explore natural capital and the degradation. Students engage in case studies, critical thinking and analysis of alternatives in exploring solutions and trade-offs in trying to address degradation.

Prerequisite(s): ENL1100 and PHI1000
Corerequisite(s):none

SOC2000 Introduction to Sociology

When working with individuals and groups it is important to understand both the background and influences present. Students develop a familiarity with sociological theories and methodological approaches used to study individual and group behaviours. Students also examine variables that include culture, social class, race, and gender and how these variables may impact work with diverse individuals and groups.

Prerequisite(s): ENL1100
Corerequisite(s):none

SOC2001 Anti-Racism: Theory and Practice

Anti-racism is the practice of identifying, challenging, and changing the values, structures, and behaviours that perpetuate systemic racism. Students explore concepts of anti-oppressive practice, anti-racist pedagogy, diversity, and inclusion at the personal, societal, and institutional levels. Students develop an understanding of historical and present-day groups and figures that challenge oppressive structures in Canadian society. Through various learning activities and discussion boards, students will develop the necessary knowledge, attitude, and skills to become an authentic ally within society.
