Bachelor of Digital Marketing Communications (Honours) (Co-op)

Honours Degree

Program Code: 6450X03FWO

4 Years

Ottawa Campus

Our Program

The four-year Bachelor of Digital Marketing Communication (Honours) degree provides students with a foundation in digital storytelling and digital technology, allowing them to effectively craft a message for a target audience and to create a communications plan to disseminate this message.

Students gain theoretical and practical knowledge regarding media channel selection, digital storytelling, marketing communications research, digital analytics and global communications. The program utilizes case studies and client projects to provide opportunities for students to practise the newly-acquired skills in a real-world context. Additionally, students conduct marketing research, utilize digital analytics and marketing research to make decisions and craft communications plans for clients within the classroom setting.

Students also gain real-world experience through a paid co-operative education (co-op) work term(s) (see Additional Information for more details). Please note that places in the co-op work term(s) are subject to availability and academic eligibility. Please note admission to a co-op program does not guarantee a co-op placement.

Graduates may seek employment in media and communications departments within government, non-profit organizations, associations, advertising and digital agencies as well as private corporations. They may work in areas such as journalism, advertising, public relations, marketing communications, professional writing and social media.

SUCCESS FACTORS

The College shall ensure that all students admitted to the above-named program during the period of consent have the opportunity to complete the program within a reasonable timeframe.

CO-OP INFORMATION:

Co-operative education (Co-op) allows students to integrate their classroom learning with a real-world experience through paid work terms. Two academic terms prior to the cooperative education work term, students are required to actively participate in and successfully complete the self-directed co-op course, readiness activities and workshops.

Students must actively conduct a guided, self-directed job search and are responsible for securing approved program-related paid co-op employment. Students compete for co-op positions alongside students from Algonquin College and other Canadian and international colleges and universities. Algonquin College's Co-op Department provides assistance in developing co-op job opportunities and guides the overall process, but does not guarantee that a student will obtain employment in a co-op work term. Co-op students may be required to relocate to take part in the co-op employment opportunities available in their industry and must cover all associated expenses; e.g., travel, work permits, visa applications, accommodation and all other incurred expenses.

Co-op work terms are typically 14 weeks in duration and are completed during a term when students are not taking courses. For more information on your program's co-op level(s), visit the courses tab on your program's webpage.

International students enrolled in a co-op program are required by Immigration, Refugees and Citizenship Canada (IRCC) to have a valid Co-op/Internship Work Permit prior to commencing their work term. Without this document International students are not legally eligible to engage in work in Canada that is part of an academic program. The Co-op/Internship Work Permit does not authorize international students to work outside the requirements of their academic program.

For more information on co-op programs, the co-op work/study schedule, as well as general and program-specific co-op eligibility criteria, please visit <https://www.algonquincollege.com/coop>.

Completion of the total number of co-op work terms listed under the courses section on the program page are mandatory for graduation. Co-op students must make every effort to remain on schedule and participate in co-op work terms as planned. Students who fail to complete co-op work terms as scheduled may be required to take an unscheduled break in their studies, resulting in a delay in graduation in order to complete their co-op at a later date. Taking an unscheduled break in studies can impact an international student's immigration status, including, in most cases, the ability to work. International students are advised to consult with the International Education Centre to understand the potential implications of unscheduled breaks at <https://www.algonquincollege.com/international/student-handouts/scheduled-unscheduled-breaks/>.

ADVANCED STANDING:

Graduates of a recognized Business Administration - Marketing Ontario College Advanced Diploma, Business - Marketing Ontario College Diploma, Advertising and Marketing Communications Management Ontario College Advanced Diploma, and Public Relations Ontario College Diploma programs are eligible to apply to customized pathway programs reducing program duration.

Graduates of other related Ontario College Diploma or Ontario College Advanced Diploma programs may be eligible for advanced standing into the degree program. Please visit the degree program listing or speak to the Program Coordinator for more information and to confirm eligibility.

Course Descriptions

ADV4100 Introduction to Digital Media and Communications

To move beyond traditional formats, students learn how digital media have transformed the ways we communicate. The transformation includes the convergence of media technologies, the blurred boundary between the producer and the user, and increasing controversies over privacy, anonymity, surveillance and copyright. Based on various theories of digital media and communications, students conduct an in-depth analysis of one digital medium. The analysis considers the roles of digital media in business practices and provides a hands-on approach to business communications challenges.

Prerequisite(s): none

Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4101 Persuasive Communications

Business communications have many functions: to inform, to remind and to persuade. One of the key skills of advertising and communications professionals is persuading target audiences to view the world or behave in a way that the communicator desires. Students explore various techniques used in persuasive communications and apply these techniques as they craft communications for a company and work with case studies.

Prerequisite(s): none

Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4200 Media Mix

Choosing the appropriate media in which to communicate a message is a crucial decision in the development of a communications plan. An effective media mix is targeted towards a specific audience and is a fit for the brand and the product being sold. Students learn how to strategically select and buy a variety of media channels. Students create a local and an international media plan utilizing industry-standard resources.

Prerequisite(s): none

Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4201 External Communications

Communications professionals are capable of crafting compelling external messages. This capacity involves addressing a variety of audiences, distinguishing communications purposes and evaluating media channels. Examining public relations and advertising issues provides a theoretical framework of external communications. Discourse analysis is conducted to compare and contrast messages that address consumers, donors and media respectively. To develop a hands-on approach, students craft oral and written messages for both stable and crisis situations.

Prerequisite(s): none

Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4202 Introduction to Social Media

Social media platforms and strategies play a key role in how companies influence audiences, expand their brand influence, and generate new leads. Students manage, execute and evaluate social media campaigns by targeting audiences, crafting compelling messages and content, and reviewing analytics. Through case studies, industry resources and practical application, students evaluate the current practices, strategic benefits and limitations of social media campaigns.

Prerequisite(s): none

Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4301 Digital Analytics I

Digital communications technologies are an extremely important element of the marketing communications mix and the ability to track these channels and make campaign-level decisions from these results is critical. The focus is on tracking objectives and measurement strategies and matching those with the appropriate tools. Students learn best practices in data collection methodologies, as well as the metrics that best measure web, mobile, social and marketing channels, each metrics' limitations and how to utilize each one to gain insights into the customer experience.

Prerequisite(s): none

Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4302 Digital Storytelling

Digital storytelling is utilized as a strategy for brand building and consumer engagement. By distinguishing digital storytelling from traditional marketing methods, students learn the importance of transforming consumers into brand advocates. Crafting digital narratives requires communications professionals to establish brand identity, deepen emotional engagement with target consumers, prioritize media platforms and measure campaign outcomes. To develop familiarity with digital storytelling, students design branding campaigns and explore the journey of turning clients into brand ambassadors.

Prerequisite(s): ADV4201

Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4303 Audience and Media Insight

Media producers, advertisers and market consultants make recommendations and craft messages by distinguishing the audience as a target, a commodity and a participant. Conducting research and analysis helps to determine the match between media products and the audience's demographic characteristics. Students further learn to conduct research by considering the audience as a commodity for a potentially matching market. This active role requires communication practitioners to draw insights from the audience regarding their experiences, lifestyles and views on media products

Prerequisite(s): none

Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4400 Digital Media Buying

As communication and advertising practitioners create a communications plan, it is important to understand how to efficiently and effectively buy digital media. Students explore how to find and buy the right media at the right cost for the company's message. Buying online advertising, social media ads, lead generation, and other digital media channels are explored as students devise a digital media plan and budget.

Prerequisite(s): none

Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4401 Digital Analytics 2

Tracking the effectiveness of digital communications technologies and making inferences and recommendations from this information is critical. The focus is on the measurement tools available to evaluate the effectiveness of digital messages disseminated through paid channels such as display advertising and social media ads. Students run tracking simulations and practice setting objectives and strategies, using various tracking tools, and relaying their results in a clear, concise and critical manner to various stakeholders.

Prerequisite(s): ADV4301

Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4502 Social Media Execution and Analytics

In an increasingly digital world, companies must find and communicate with consumers online. Students develop social media calendars, craft compelling messages aimed at a brand's target audience, discuss how to monitor different social media channels and engage in real time dialogues with customers. Furthermore, students use reach, engagement and sentiment monitoring and analytics strategies to determine social media effectiveness.

Prerequisite(s): ADV4202

Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4503 Digital Technologies

Digital technologies are important elements of a communications plan as consumers rely more and more upon online information to make decisions. Students explore the various existing and emerging technology options and how to craft a compelling narrative utilizing these tools. Emphasis is placed on adapting as new technologies emerge. Students craft a media plan appropriate for a brand's strategic objectives.

Prerequisite(s): none

Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4505 Consumer Behaviour

Psychological factors such as motivation, self-concept and perception have a profound influence on the buying process. Understanding how consumers make decisions and perceive the world allows communications and media practitioners to craft and distribute messages that speak to the consumer more effectively. Topics include the buying process, decision models and current trends in consumer behaviour and expectations such as mindfulness, expectation of personalization and perceptions of innovation and technology.

Prerequisite(s): MKT4101

Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4600 Multicultural Communications

In an increasingly multicultural environment, communications practitioners need to adapt communications campaigns to distinct domestic audiences. Students research social norms and customs and apply their findings to create multicultural campaigns that adapt the media mix, message and creative execution. The emphasis is on adapting a broad national campaign to specific multicultural audiences.

Prerequisite(s): ADV4201 and MKT4203

Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4601 Internal Communications

Internal communications are critical to employee engagement and organizational success. Communication professionals develop team skills, foster trust and master interpersonal communications. To craft internal messages in different formats and for different purposes, students explore a variety of theoretical frameworks and communications tools. Students also learn to build teamwork and turn crises into opportunities through effective internal communications.

Prerequisite(s): none
Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4603 Search Media Strategies and Tactics

As consumers research a product purchase, they often utilize a search engine to begin and refine their search for information. Being one of the first brands or websites on the list when consumers search related keywords is one of the ways that a brand can create an image of success and encourage consideration. Students explore search engine optimization and search engine marketing strategies in order to ensure that prospective customers see the brand's website and name. Students implement best practices in website optimization and develop keyword lists, write search engine ad copy and assess analytics results.

Prerequisite(s): ADV4400
Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4701 Mobile Strategies and Tactics

With much of the adult population owning a smartphone, mobile marketing is becoming an increasingly important part of the marketing communications mix. Students explore various mobile media marketing options as they create and execute a mobile communications strategy that fits a brand's overall advertising and communications strategy and image. Students also evaluate the effectiveness and limitations of these communications strategies.

Prerequisite(s): none
Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4703 Global Communications

Combining the major skills of this program in an applied setting allows students to decipher the big picture of international communications. The emphasis is on case studies in a global environment. Students create integrated promotional campaigns that utilize mobile, search, traditional, digital and social media aimed at audiences in various regions of the world, as well as plans to measure the effectiveness of their campaigns. Students complete the first stage of a year-long capstone project demonstrating expertise in recommending dissemination strategies and developing storytelling pieces for a global brand within the paid and owned digital media space.

Prerequisite(s): ADV4302
Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4801 Global Brand and Reputation Management

The emergence of online word-of-mouth through social media, discussion boards and blogs has made brand reputation more vulnerable and complex. Students manage brand images through internal and external communications. Furthermore, students monitor and safeguard the brand reputation across the ever-shifting digital landscape by crafting messages aimed at internal and external stakeholders across multiple regions, thus practicing brand management in a simulated crisis situation. Students complete the second stage of their year-long capstone project by monitoring a global brand's footprint and recommending a reputation management strategy for its earned and shared digital media space.

Prerequisite(s): ADV4600 and ADV4703
Corerequisite(s):none

ADV4802 Digital Marketing Research and Data Analytics

In the digital world, it is crucial that communications and marketing practitioners adapt the marketing research process to the online context. Students apply the various tools and methodologies of digital marketing research, including online panels and digital analytics, to an online marketing research project. This includes setting strategic objectives, data collection, data analysis and making strategic recommendations. Students complete a capstone project in tandem with the Business and Campaign Analytics class to roll up the findings into marketing and business-level return on investment reports.

Prerequisite(s): MKT4602
Corerequisite(s): BUS4800

ADV4803 Persuasive Campaigns

Crafting compelling campaigns is the goal of most communications and advertising professionals. Students plan and manage a persuasive campaign utilizing all the digital media presented throughout the program. Working in teams, students conduct market research and create a strategic communications campaign of strategic importance to an organization.

Prerequisite(s): ADV4101 and ADV4302
Corerequisite(s): none

BIO2200 Botany

Biologists with an interest in plant life may choose to specialize in botany. Beginning with the organic features of life, focusing on plants, students investigate the diversity of plant life and the basis for distinction amongst various species. With a deeper knowledge of plant structures and variability, students consider the impact of plants in the modern world, including human interactions such as food production, building materials and medicine.

BUS4800 Business and Campaign Analytics

Combining the major skills of this program in an applied setting allows students to comprehend the big picture of research-based decision-making in a business context. The emphasis is on case studies in a global environment. By applying various business analytics, students evaluate integrated promotional campaigns that utilize mobile, search, traditional, digital and social media in order to make recommendations about how to adjust and optimize the campaign in the future. Students complete a capstone project in tandem with the Digital Marketing Research class to roll up the findings into marketing and business-level return on investment reports.

DSN4401 Introduction to Creative Design

Visual communication is an essential component of all digital media. A basic knowledge of design tools and image creation allows students to contribute to the design process within the larger context of industry, culture and society. Ethics, alongside critical and strategic thinking, guide students' creative design. Through a combination of research and studio-based work, students are introduced to the design process and its applications.

Prerequisite(s): none

Corerequisite(s): none

DSN4702 Interactive Website Design

In a digital world, the flow, function and content of a company's website are equally important in communicating to audiences and influencing behaviour. Students learn the principles of user-centered design to create interactive content for the web. Students employ design thinking and rapid prototyping methods while experimenting with content, grid layouts and responsive design techniques to build mobile-first websites.

GED2300 Indigenous Self-Representation in Contemporary Canadian Culture

Historically, Indigenous peoples and their cultures have been dramatically misrepresented and stereotyped in Canadian literature, music, visual arts, film, and television as a result of ongoing attempts to colonize, marginalize, romanticize, and assimilate them. Starting with an historical overview of the oppressive act of misrepresenting, appropriating, and stereotyping Indigenous peoples and their cultures in Canada, students explore how contemporary Indigenous artists have responded to these misrepresentations by subverting, critiquing, challenging, and changing the representations of Indigenous peoples and their cultures in their own artistic works. Significant works of contemporary literature, music, visual arts, film, and television created by contemporary Indigenous artists who give voice to their experiences in Canada serve as the basis for critical analysis and creative reflection on the processes of self-representation and cultural reclamation of Indigenous voices and identity in Canada.

GEO2300 Principles of Urban Planning

Increasingly cities and communities are feeling the pressure of expansion, and people from all walks of life feel disconnected from the processes, procedures, and decisions that are affecting everyday life. Students consider urban transformation with a focus on practicing sustainability by exploring innovations in land use, transportation, resource planning and economic development, resulting in employment opportunities, as well as healthy and vibrant cities. Students use local and regional activities as a starting point for developing a knowledge base for future social and community involvement. Research projects and assignments encourage students to identify the gaps between theoretical approaches to urban planning and the practical applications as evidenced in their local surroundings.

PHI4002 The Philosophy of Drugs

Drugs are everywhere: professionals prescribe them to us to make us "better"; we take them recreationally; we give them to our children, pets and other loved ones; we buy them on the streets and in grocery stores. What are "drugs"? Why are some drugs legal and others not? How do drugs get to market? What ethical issues are relevant in a global drug industry? Are current intellectual property regimes appropriate if the goal of drug research is to promote benefits to society? Students critically examine these, and other, questions through the lens of historical and contemporary ethical, philosophical and legal theories and arguments. Students engage in various peer-oriented learning activities throughout the course.

PHI4003 The Philosophy of Love and Sex

Love and sex are central to the human condition, and have been topics of academic inquiry and controversy throughout history. Various practices surrounding love and sex are celebrated in Western culture, such as monogamy and marriage, while other practices, such as polygamy and pedophilia, are condemned. Why is this? Students critically explore these and other issues surrounding love and sex using examples from popular music, movies and literature, framing those issues with the help of historical and contemporary philosophical theories and arguments. Students engage in various peer-oriented learning activities throughout the course.

PHI4004 Technology, Society and the Environment

Environmental issues have come to occupy a central place in the marketplace, politics, policy, and society at large. Owing largely to the many environmental consequences that have accompanied industrialization, we humans have been forced to rethink the complex relationship between technology, society and the environment. Students investigate philosophical concepts and theories surrounding technology, society and the environment including: the "naturalness" of technology, sustainability and animal rights. Students critically examine course material by focusing on questions such as: What is nature, and what role do/should humans occupy in it? What do we owe non-human organisms? What do we owe future generations? Students engage in various peer-oriented learning activities throughout the course.

PHY4000 Black Holes, Big Bangs and the Cosmos

The dynamic and exciting field of Cosmology outlines our current understanding of the Universe from its start, at the so-called Big Bang, through the ensuing 13 plus billion years to the present and beyond. Students learn how to discuss our present understanding of the three phases of the Universe as well as its five part make up, with matter making up only 4% of the whole. Students explain our knowledge of the various phases of evolution of the Cosmos and also the latest theories and experiments that are trying to address our uncertainties. Throughout the course, students evaluate and debate many of today's ideas and concepts revolving around cosmology.
